

Unidentified disease on Duranta

AJAY PRAKASH

READ REVIEWS

WRITE A REVIEW

CORRESPONDENCE:

baboo_2259@yahoo.co.in

DATE RECEIVED:

December 07, 2018

© Prakash This article is distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License, which permits unrestricted use, distribution, and redistribution in any medium, provided that the original author and source are credited.

The Duranta hedge growing in my garden is lately showing diseased symptoms. Its leaves are curled at margins and puckered. Observing these regions under foldscope revealed hypertrophy. Cellular masses were seen in these hypertrophied regions. The cause of these symptoms is not clear.

